

Australopithecus Robustus

Hey all the australopithecines out there! If you're looking for someone unique- I'm your guy (bet you've never been with another guy of contested genus, Hello Paranthropus!). You know what they say, bigger is better, and if you're looking for bigger, look no further (as long as you only look at my face and not my height)! I'm about 1.5 million years old but whoever said age before beauty never met me! So, if you're in the caves of South Africa and looking for a good time, swipe right!

Best physical features

I'm mostly a neck-up kind of guy- standing only just under four feet tall, I have to compensate somewhere. I have a great smile- with teeth as big and thick as mine it's hard not to! My wide cheeks give me a friendly look to cover up the massive jaw muscles they hide.

Skills and Hobbies

I'm pretty resourceful- with only a stick or a stone I can reach pretty much all the food I need. I'm also adventurous and like to get out and see new places.

What I'm looking for in a partner

My ideal partner would ideally be looking for something serious quickly. I'm getting up there in years and I don't want to miss my chance to pass these good looks onto a new generation...

Favorite food

I try to impress the ladies by chowing down on only the toughest of raw nuts, seeds, roots, and tubers. I'm not picky though- if I've got a good bone tool and a mound of termites right in front of me.... Hey, don't knock it til you try it- a man needs his protein!

Favorite TV show

If I were an animal on Netflix- it makes me reminisce on my earlier evolutionary days. Plus, it's an easy watch- not too much critical thinking!

Ideal First Date

On my perfect first date, we'd dine in my cave, then walk the South African grasslands, with maybe a quick dip into some wooded areas as well to keep things exciting

Typical Weekend

Find me trying to expand my mind constantly- some say I'm starting from a low point, but it's all up from here!

Five things I can't live without

- 1. Limestone caves
- 2. Open spaces
- 3. Good toothpaste
- 4. Strong jaw
- 5. Good company (especially from females)

Message me if...

You're looking for a strong man. After all, robustus is Latin for "strongly built"!!
